Laurinda Hope Spear, FAIA, ASLA

Founding Principal, Arquitectonica, Miami, FL

An educator, community advocate and award-winning designer, Spear is well regarded for her work on buildings, home furnishings, and most recently, landscapes.

Dream project: We've just started a landscape architecture firm, Arquitectonica Geo, so it would be an ecology and conservation project. It's really important to have a hands-on relationship with the land. And landscape architects can be bigger thinkers than architects, who really grind through nitty-gritty details.

"It's really important to have a hands-on relationship with the land."

Biggest practice challenge:

Arquitectonica Geo needs to prove to hiring architects that we can do this well.

Favored building materials:

I'm making a movie about green roofs. They are so obviously logical and one of the most useful places to improve quality of life. The subject literally bridged the gap between architecture and landscape architecture for me.

Alternative career:

I dream of making a fictional documentary—maybe related to architecture.

Arm-R-Lite Door Mfg. Co., Inc.

Arm-R-Lite Door Manufacturing Company's new Aluminarc model fills a need in the architectural community. The arched appearance of the door can be customized to replicate a building's structure. As seen in the photo, the Edison, NJ, Firehouse #2, designed by Imperial Architectural Group, required the feel and charm of Carriage House wood doors. The Aluminarc has achieved that goal while providing a maintenance-free, welded aluminum, frame. The door boasts a 20-year warranty, US patent #D498303.

Pilkington

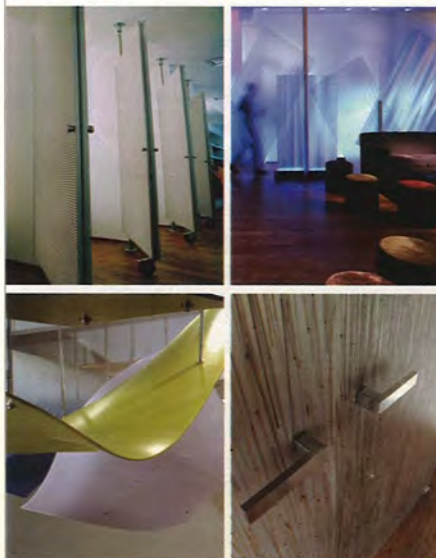

OptiView™ Anti-Reflective Glass minimizes glass reflections by reducing visible light reflectance to less than 2%, while blocking more than 99% of UV transmittance using Pilkington's online pyrolytic process, OptiView™ Anti-Reflective Glass offers more size flexibility than other anti-reflective glass products. Being a laminate, OptiView™ Glass provides excellent acoustic control and superior safety and security performance. Pilkington OptiView™ is a practical choice for retail storefronts, showrooms, and other applications where an anti-reflective product was never an option.
